Shawn Brenchley is Senior Vice President and Chief Recruiting Officer at Vivint, Inc., one of the leading security and home management companies in North America. Shawn uses his sales expertise and security background to successfully manage Vivint's summer sales program.

Having run one of the first successful door-to-door alarm sales programs, and a skilled salesman himself, Shawn is a natural leader for the Vivint summer sales program. Under Shawn's leadership the summer sales program has flourished. It has seen an average of 64 percent growth of installed systems each year from 2003 to the present. Much of this success can be attributed to Shawn's talent for finding the right person for the right job and his ability to teach and motivate. He is committed to ensuring his employees are not only productive, but also satisfied with their jobs. The stability the summer sales program brings to the company has also been critical as Vivint has worked with new investors and transformed into a full-service alarm company.

Before joining Vivint, Shawn was a successful account sales rep for a manufacturing and waste management company. Later Shawn served as the President and Chief Executive Officer of SafeHome Security. Under his direction, SafeHome implemented one of the first successful door-to-door programs for an alarm company and built and operated a nationwide service network that serviced more than 50,000 customers. With Shawn at the helm, SafeHome was one of Inc. 500's fastest-growing private companies from 2001 to 2003.

Shawn holds a bachelor's degree in marketing from the University of Utah.
